ABOUT ME

I began working in the arts at the age of 15, and went on to have a wide range of internships and jobs in the artistic field for the next decade. As I gained knowledge and experience in the industry my awareness only deepened that my true passion came from a desire to make visitors feel connected to the art they were viewing by communicating not only the history piece, but of all the social factors surrounding it.

An interest in creating solutions to communicate with groups of people began my career as a full-stack developer. I have carried that goal with me designing interactive websites and applications to help clients share their message and values directly to their desired audience.
